Believing that this is the only course which will result in permanent prosperity to the country and that the people are such as to support the country naturally and heartily endorse, we shall uphold and defend them at all times. In the opinion of the editor, we can make our paper acceptable, we ask a liberal patronage.

The Dutchman's Experience.

The following experience we republish by request, from sketches of Western Methodism, by Rev. J. B. Finley:

When we were travelling the Cross Creek circuit, in 1815, in a region of country which was mostly settled by German Lutherans, and not much regard paid to the Sabbath, or any religion, there lived a German by the name of Gust. He was one of the principal men of the neighborhood, and had great influence among his German friends. At one of our love-feasts we heard him relate his experience, and though it was in very broken English, yet it was told with an emotion and a power which melted all hearts, and which thrilled and interested us so much that we have not forgotten it to this day.

There is something peculiar in the German mind and character which shows itself, wraps, more strikingly in regard to the subject of religion than anything else. It seems that in whatever enterprise a German embarks, it engrosses his entire energies, and when once fully committed on any subject, he adheres to it with an energy, zeal, and perseverance worthy of all praise. Staid and sober as he may appear, he nevertheless has the excitability of a Frenchman without his mercurial nature. Luther was a noble type of the Teutonic mind, and exhibited the different characteristics of which we have spoken, when he said he would go to the Diet of Worms if there were as many devils in his way as there were tiles on the roofs of the houses; and when, in his excited imagination, he saw the devil before him in his study, and threw his inkstand at him; and, also, when on another occasion, he was arraigned before an ecclesiastical council for heresy, and threatened with punishment if he did not retract, he said, "Here I stand, God help me!" One has said, "Get a German once converted, and there is little danger of his refusing to take up his cross, or turning back to the beggarly elements of the world." They seem to carry out more fully Mr. Wesley's idea of Methodism than even the English brethren themselves.

When they sing, "they sing lustily;" when they pray, they pray with all their might; when they speak in class meeting or love-feast, they come right to the point of Christian experience without any circumlocution. Such was the case with our good German brother whose experience we are going to relate.

Shortly after the speaking exercises commenced, he arose and said, "Mine dear brethren, von I comes to die black day as nobody here. Den after, mine freinds come too, and ve did come along very good, as ve dot. Ve did drink viskey, and frolic, and dance, and ve all dot it was very nice; but binebys der comes along in de neighborhood a Methodist breacher by de name of Jo. Shackelford, and he breaches and breaches, and brays and brays, as you never see de like i all your lives. He says, 'You beoples all goes to hell unless you git converted, and be saved from your zins.' Now, vell den, de beoples begins to tink seriously on dis matter, and dey say we must do better, or are enough, de devil vill git us unless as he says. Den dey gits Christian, and begins to bray; and dey valls down, and brays, and crows, and hollers, and I says to my beoples, dis is de devil; and it goes on till it comes to my neighbor Honnes. Vell, I does not go and my wife and gals does not go, because I said it was de devil. Vell, however, I gones so near to mine house, I says I vill go and see vat is dis ting vat makes de beoples so crazy. So von night I goes to Honnes's to see de brayer meeting, and I sets down and sees de beoples come in, and dey looks shuck like dey used to do, and I dot it was all vell, but dey soon begins to sing and bray, and I dot dis is all right. Den some pegins to crows, and valls down; and I says, 'Dis is de devil, and I vill shuck go home;' but ven I went to rise up I could not, vor I was fast to de bench. Den I was skeered, and I said, 'Dis is de devil vor enough.' I looked round, and I dot de door was growed up, and I was fast enough. Vell, vell, den I says, 'Mine Got, de devil vill git me now, by sure!' I looked more for de door, and presently I sees him, and I makes von spring and out I goes head-foremost. Den I gits up, and runs mit all my might till I comes to mine fence; and ven I goes to git over I comes down smack upon my pack, and now I says, 'De devil vill git me, by sure!' I lays dare for some time, den I gits up, and climes de fence, and goes to my house, and dot I would slumt go to bed nit making any noise; but shuck as I was gittin in ped smack down I comes on mine pack upon de floor; and Madalana, mine wife, did shump out of de bed, and de schreim; and Petts and Kate—dis my two gals—dey did shump up and schreim and holler, and dare I lays, and I says, 'O, mine Got, tis ish to devil!' Madalana says, 'No matter for you; it shud serves you right; you would go, and now you prings de devil home mit you to your own house.' Petts and Kate dey shuck, and mine wife she seels, and de devil he shakes me over de hells, and all my sins shuck comes up to mine eyes, and I says, 'O, mine Got, save me!' After a while I goes to bed, but I not sleeps. I says 'O mine Got, mine Got, vat vill become of me!' Shurt at daylight I gits up and goes down to my barn, and gits under de hoss-trough, and smack I comes on mine pack again. Den I eries mit all my might, 'O, mine Got, mine Got, have mercy upon me!' I dot I was going to de bells. Shuck den something say to me, 'Dis sins pe all forgiven.' Den something comes down all over me at my head, shuck like honey, and I opens my mouth shuck so vide ash I shuck Got for his pring me down on mine pack, and for mine wife and mine gals, for dey now goes mit me to glory; so, mine bruders, ve vill all binebys meet in dat goot world, to braise de Lort forever and ever."

A TERRIBLE PLUNGE.
At the close of a sultry day in August I arrived at an obscure inn which was located in one of the rural villages of the West. The village possessed no striking difference from the other villages of the region, save an appearance of slovenliness on the part of its inhabitants, which estranged it somewhat from that sterling enterprise this so characterizes the active spirit of the West. The village inn appeared to have imbibed its share of the prevailing slovenliness to the fullest extent, as it wore an aspect of extreme untruthfulness, mingled with a certain suspiciousness of evil which confronts the traveller with an instinctive feeling of distrust that all is not well where such surroundings abound.

I had often heard the inn spoken of unfavorably, but not caring to hazard belief in endorsing them as authentic, I had allowed the dark stories of the mysterious disappearance of travellers, and midnight orgies, to pass without awakening a second thought. But on seeing the inn and beholding its shiffling and abject surroundings, together with that of meeting a score of malicious appearing loafers, who were lounging about, scrutinizing every stranger with an eye of eager curiosity, which indicated the presence of evil designs, those stories, which I had long thought forgotten, flashed upon my recollection with vivid distinctness. And had it not been for the fatigue and weariness which I felt in consequence of riding all day on the rough and hilly roads, I believe I should have been induced to find some more favorable place where to pass the night. But, as it was, I chose to confront the danger of staying at the inn, be it little or great, rather than seek a more hospitable shelter.

Ordering supper, I set about to make myself comfortable as possible in the midst of the existing circumstances, which would haunt me with grim forebodings regardless of my best efforts to supplant them from my mind. In fact, they so wrought upon my mind that I began to view them as vague presagings that if I stopped at the inn that night some dreadful adventure would befall me. But my resolution, once formed, was not to be departed from, let presentations argue what they would. And with a firm determination to stay at the old inn I answered the landlord's call for supper, and partook of his viands with a relish which only an appetite sharpened by a toilsome ride can furnish.

After supper I joined the crowd of loafers in the bar-room, who, on my entrance, appeared to be holding a secret consultation among themselves, which my presence seemed to disturb, as their consultation ceased almost immediately on my entrance. And after exchanging sundry looks and gestures, one of their number arose and came and seated himself on the rude bench beside me, where he endeavored, with a series of questions, to learn my destination, business, &c. But in answering his questions I so prevaricated that he learned little or nothing of either. The others, on seeing their companion fairly engaged in questioning me, arose and went to another room, the landlord leading the way, thus leaving me alone with my inquirer, who, unimposed by my equivocation, continued to apply his questions to my exceeding annoyance. How long I should have been doomed to endure this vexation I cannot say, had it not been for the arrival of a fellow-traveller—a swarthy, fractious, appearing Dutchman, who, like myself, sought shelter for the night at the old inn.

On the arrival of the Dutchman, the landlord reappeared. After he had arranged matters with his new guest, I told the landlord I would like to be shown to my room, as, being tired, I wished to enjoy a good sleep that night. The landlord complied to my wishes by shouting, "Ho, Dick! bring a light; this ere stranger wants to go to bed."

Dick presently appeared with a light, and I was shown to my room, thereby eluding my impertinent questioner. Carefully securing the door, and placing my revolver under my pillows, I went to bed, feeling prepared to receive an attack from the inmates of the inn, in case such an attack should be made. With such thoughts to wait me to sleep, I was soon under the gentle influences of Morpheus.

I had slept until the hour of midnight, when I was awakened by some indistinct sounds which appeared to me, as I lay in that state of semi-consciousness which I experience on first awakening, to be those produced by some one in trying to force an entrance into my room; but after becoming perfectly awake, I heard no sound but that of the waters of the river as they ran over the rapids in the rear of the inn, and was about to dismiss the cause of my awakening as the effect of a dream, when I heard unmistakable sounds of angry words and violent blows in the adjoining room. The voice I recognized as that of the Dutch traveller, and the ponderous blow which I heard struck, I also attributed to him, as I had noticed he was a powerful man and capable of offering a desperate resistance against the assassins who were attacking him.

These thoughts flashed through my mind much quicker than I can write them, and, acting under the impulse which they occasioned, I sprang from the bed, and, hastily donning my clothes, seized my revolver and rushed to the door. But ere I had succeeded in opening it I heard the terrible exclamation, "There, I have killed you!" And then followed the heavy footfalls of the retreating assassin under my door.

The next instant the door had yielded, and I stepped into the hall in pursuit of the flying murderer. It was so dark that I could not see him, but by the sound of his footsteps I followed him down the winding stair-case, through the deserted bar-room, and out into the yard, where I first beheld him as he was rapidly moving towards the river. So rapid were his movements that he failed to notice that I was pursuing him. Perceiving this, I hastened in the pursuit, and so closely approached him that I saw it was the Dutchman who was fleeing from the inn.

"Whom had he murdered? What could have drove him from the inn?" I asked myself as I watched his angry gestations and heard his excited ejaculations. These questions I was unable to answer, and was about to demand an explanation for his strange conduct when he arrived at the river bank, and with one horrid leap plunged head-long into the current. I rushed to the bank just in time to see him rise to the surface of the water, and in an excited tone demanded, "What, in Heaven's name, means this?" Raising his hands above the water, he answered, in accents rich with hate, "I killed one of our tem miskeeters in my room, and have come to drown derest!"

The Third Party.
The recent election has done much good everywhere, but there is one result to which we invite attention, and that is the position in which the Third Party movement is exhibited. The election served to remove the veil from the delicate organization, and we see the party as it is—a party of world-beaters when the people will not follow. Men of great aspirations, but not appreciated. The manifest duty of those who are inclined to follow the fortunes of this feeble organization is apparent. To effect anything, these gentlemen must unite with the Radicals or the Democracy. We cannot believe that they will throw themselves into the Radical organization—the party of fanaticism and despotism—the party that favors negro suffrage, and will, in the course of events, naturally demand negro equality. The man must be very blind who cannot see that radicalism is verging, with no tardy steps, to the utmost bounds of fanaticism, as proclaimed by Thad. Stevens and Wendell Phillips. The doctrine that they now urge is part of the programme of advancing loyalty, and those leaders are only blazing the way for their followers of the Radical party. Can Kentuckians endorse these measures? Will they sell themselves to their enemies from mere prejudice to Democracy, and can they go all the lengths which fanaticism will require of them? We look for better things from them. We cannot believe that they will now try to perpetuate discord among Conservatives by their unpatriotic course. It is for their own good that we would urge them to fall into line of battle for the cause of conservatism. The Democratic party can do without the Third party, and can achieve victory in spite of its opposition; but the time has come when the Thirds must decide to their future. Keeping up their own little party will only detract a few votes from the Democracy, and it will effect nothing more. Let this party of leaders go, and do some good for your country even at this late hour, by adding to the majorities in August. This is plainly your duty, fellow-citizens of the Third party. Patriotism demands that you do your duty at this important period of our national history.

Public Speaking.
On last Monday, County Court day, our citizens had the pleasure of hearing able and convincing speeches from two of our noblest standard-bearers, Hon. J. A. Dawson and Hon. John Rodman. Mr. Dawson in a candid and earnest manner presented the political issues of the day, and by the fairness of his statements and arguments won the admiration of all unprejudiced minds. As a soldier who had fought in the Union army, for the purpose of preserving and not destroying the Constitution, his denunciation of the treachery of radicalism was withering. He did not seek to evade, as some of the opponents of the Democratic party have charged, his connection with the Federal army, but in a spirit candor, admitted his position; and his nomination fully demonstrates the weakness of the slanderous charge that the Democracy nominated a "rebel" leader. We hope Mr. Dawson will engage actively in the political canvass. He can exert great influence on the minds of his fellow citizens, for as an upright, candid Christian gentleman, he naturally obtains the confidence of those who hear him. Our third party friends need such lectures as Mr. Dawson can give them. He shows them plainly and vividly their position, the effect of their action, and points out their duty.

Mr. Rodman in an able effort depicted the fearful condition to which radicalism has brought our once powerful nation, showed the destruction that fanaticism is driving us into, and in a noble appeal urged the duty of patriotism. We cannot do justice to the masterly effort of Mr. Rodman. We can only characterize it as worthy of the cause in which it was offered, the cause of constitutional liberty.

HENRY COUNTY ITEMS.
The thriving town of Eminence was thrown into a terrible state of excitement last Saturday, by the appearance of a mad dog upon the streets. Results—Dog chased three miles and mortally killed, after having bitten several other dogs and snapped at the legs of several citizens. After this little affair had subsided, a pair of horses attached to a buggy ran off, doing no injury but affording much fun to the youngsters of Eminence. Considerable horse show in Eminence same day, at which much fine stock was exhibited. Mr. Sweden Johnson, of Shelby county, among others added greatly to the exhibition with his fine horses. J. C. Ireland passed through Eminence with 150 head of fat sheep for New Orleans, averaging 149 lbs per head.
J. M. Thornton, agent for Geo. G. Donaldson, sold a 2 acre of ground in Eminence for $750 cash.
Messrs. Wilson, Tinsley & Co., of Eminence, have recently erected a splendid building, consisting of business rooms, and a Masonic Hall, which will add greatly to the appearance of the town. Their store room is filled with $20,000 worth of goods direct from New York, selected by W. B. Wilson, a gentleman whose taste and experience is sufficient recommendation. The building was erected by George B. Stuchler, of Virginia, a superior workman.

Congressional Election.
We publish below the vote of the Fourth Congressional District. The returns from the State will show a majority of 40,000 over both the Radical and Third parties. The Radical vote is larger than the Third party in every district except the Fifth. So says the Louisville Courier, from which we condense the following statement:

DEAR SENTINEL: Yesterday morning at 5 o'clock the thermometer stood at 38, a heavy frost covered the ground. To-day farmers think the crop is pretty well lost, still, if they could have a few warm days there is enough cotton under the ground to make a stand; what was already up, is most certainly killed. The corn is badly injured, but they can replant. The wheat promises well. Fruit may yet drop off, but has not so far.

Labor is scarce, and farmers feel so uncertain as to the security of their property that they are very much discouraged. Yesterday, I saw a gentleman who had been pardoned by the President, who had just received the information that his estate, stock, money and credits were confiscated. It appears that he took the oath before a notary public instead of the military authority. On this is based the confiscation. As soon as I can gather any interesting facts you shall hear from me.

Democratic Legislative Convention.
The Democratic Central Committee for the county of Shelby have, this day, called a convention of the party to nominate a candidate to represent the county of Shelby in the next Legislature. The convention will meet in Shelbyville, on Monday, June 3d, 1867, at 10 o'clock, A. M. The voters of the several precincts will meet at their places of voting, on Saturday, June 1st, at 2 o'clock P. M., and appoint delegates to represent them in this convention. They will appoint one delegate for every fifty votes cast for Duval and for every fraction over twenty-five, and alternates. All are invited to participate in this convention who intend to co-operate with the Democratic party and support the Democratic State ticket.

C. M. Harwood, Chairman.
May 14th, 1867.
Democratic Convention.
We request that the Democracy of the Senatorial District, composed of the counties of Shelby, Henry and Oldham, meet by precincts the first Saturday in June, to select delegates to meet in convention at Eminence, the second Saturday in June, to nominate a candidate for the Senatorship.

JOSEPH P. FORRE.
W. L. VORLES.

W. P. THORN.—We publish in this issue, a letter from this gentleman, in which, though he partially declines a nomination as candidate for Representative from Henry, yet does not positively refuse the use of his name in a convention should one be called. We do not wish to interfere in the affairs of our Henry county friends, but we tell them now that they will do well to secure the services of Mr. Thorn in the next Legislature. He has ability, energy, and industry, and will reflect honor upon his county, as it's representative.

Horace Greeley and August Schell are to be the first two names on Davis' bill book.

We cordially approve and endorse the Courier's sound and patriotic suggestions in regard to the elections to the next Legislature of Kentucky. That paper says:
We would suggest to our friends that in nominating candidates for the Legislature no test of political antecedents should be made. If a man now thoroughly indorses the principles for which the Democratic party is contending, it does not matter, in the slightest degree, whatever, in former days, he was Whig or Democrat. The candidate for Democratic nomination, provided he is wholly and heartily with us in our war upon those impious foes of the country, the radicals, and thoroughly sympathizes with us in our desire to restore the government to its old constitutional basis, ought not to be asked whether, in the late unhappy war, he served with the Confederates or Federals.

This is the true ground to be maintained. It is solid ground, and the Democracy can stand upon it against all assaults from whatever quarter. They can win a victory upon it without being beaten back a single step. Let the ablest and wisest and truest conservative men in all the counties of the State be nominated and supported for the Legislature, and let no question be put or answered as to whether this, that, or the other undoubted conservative was, in action or feeling, for the Federal or for the Confederate side. This distinction has got to be ignored, and the sooner and more utterly we ignore it, the better for the peace and harmony and prosperity of the State and nation.

Beyond all question our next Legislature will be a vastly important one. It will meet in the midst of a most fearful crisis. It will come together in such a public exigency as has never existed yet in this or in any country. It will assemble at a period, when, according to appearances, the spirit of Revolution and of either Anarchy or Despotism will be raging and maddening and foaming to and fro in the land like a drunken giant. Measures of tremendous moment, none can conjecture what or how many, will come up, some of them no doubt suddenly, for the action of the State. And mighty results may depend upon their action being right or wrong. Therefore we have need of the greatest legislative services that we can by any effort obtain.

This is no time for small men or middle men in our General Assembly. Such men do well enough in that body in seasons of dull quiet when only humdrum legislation is needed, but they are deplorably out of place there when the strongest pillars of our government and of our liberties are bending and rocking before the roaring political hurricane.—Lon. Journal.

Card from W. P. Thorn, Esq.
EMINENCE, May 10, 1867.

GENTLEMEN: Your recent call upon me to become the candidate of the Democratic party to represent the county of Henry in the next Legislature, expressed a confidence toward myself not only very grateful, but tempting to a young man just entering upon a business career. While my sober judgment admonishes me that it is the best policy to devote all my time and energies to building up a permanent and successful business by the practice of my profession, I cannot omit the opportunity to return my sincere thanks to the kind friends who have given me, unsought and unexpected, this generous and flattering evidence of their esteem for me. Under certain circumstances so emphatic a call from those to whose favor and experience I have always looked for lessons of wisdom and discretion might induce me to overcome the distrust of my youth and in experience, and consent to the use of my name, but the Democratic party is overwhelmingly strong, and there are wise and true men of mature age and qualifications than myself who can better afford the leisure; and whoever the party may select, to such, to be its standard-bearer, I shall cheerfully and actively support. Yours, truly,
W. P. THORN

RICHMOND, May 9.
A serious riot occurred this evening. A large crowd of negroes were gathered in Cary street to witness a trial of the engines of the Richmond Fire Department and the Wilmington, Del., fire companies. A mob of negroes rescued him, but he was again captured. On arriving at the upper station-house the mob again rescued him, throwing paving stones at the police. Captain Jenkins of the police, two sergeants and one private were injured, two of them seriously.

By this time the mob had swelled to nearly 1,000 blacks. Gen. Schofield sent up a company of the 110th regiment, and came on the ground himself. He spoke to the mob, commanding them to disperse, but the order was disobeyed. The soldiers then charged bayonets and drove them away. More soldiers were sent to the station-house after night, and the riot is not likely to be repeated.

During the riot the mob surrounded a house in which a white boy had taken refuge and clamored for him till he became out, when the police took him in charge. The negroes said he had shot at them.

CLIPPED FROM THE DIARY OF A TRAVELLER OF THE INDIES.—Last eve, as the great red sun of the Orient set its last keen, sweeping glances over its fair dominions, we sailed up the bright dancing waters of the "Bay of Plesure," called in the native tongue "Ching-ar-ora," a literal translation of which is, "Bay of Plesure;" and it is fairly named, for a more delightful valley than that which bounds and hushes the gentle, gurgling waves of the Ching-ar-ora was never seen by the broad eye of the sun. The gentle ascent which extends far north of the Bay is all blushing with rose fruit, while the great fields to the south, at first glance, seem a slightly undulating sea; but in looking more carefully you discover this seeming expanse of water to be a broad field of luxuriant tobacco, (called the Ching-ar-ora,) gently waving in the balmy breeze. The natives are a tall, laughing, noble looking race, and are never without the inevitable pipe, from which issues huge columns of rich smoke; and as one peers wisely at you, and puffs, as he peers, you are somewhat comically and forcibly reminded that

He who smokes thinks like a philosopher.

The following deeds were admitted to record, in the Shelby county Clerks Office for the week ending, May 6, 1867:
S. B. Richardson's Heir, dec'd partition; Patrick Welch, to Martha Tiedy, 1 lot, $150; J. P. McDowell, to A. D. Walker, 4 lots, $1,500; James Hughes, to J. M. Montgomery, 1 lot, $400; R. J. R. Baker, to C. T. Shepherd, 476 acres, $13,538; Same, to M. J. B. Ker, 90 acres, $2,120; J. C. Booker, to J. C. Booker, 50 acres, $2,000.

STATISTICS OF MODERN GREECE.—From a sketch recently published, we collate the following interesting Grecian statistics: Greece has been independent thirty-six years, during which time her population has increased from 650,000 to 1,250,000; her resources from $1,400,000 to $5,025,000; her mercantile marine numbers 5,000 vessels, aggregating 150,000 tons, employing 30,000 seamen. She exports 5,000 tons of figs, 40,000 tons of currents, against 6,000 in 1830; and tobacco, cotton, wool, light wines, green fruit, raw silk, leathers, sponges, hides, emery stone, &c., and has steam flour mills, iron foundries, and silk, cotton and woolen factories.

Athens, which in 1830 had a population of only 7,000, has now 50,000 inhabitants; and while then a mere cluster of hovels and mud-huts, it is now a stone and marble edifices, lighted with gas, and has free schools, free hospitals, libraries, museums, asylums, observatories and colleges, and a university, attending which are 1,500 students, from all parts of the East.

Greece has a free press, a free Government, and the vote by ballot, and a free suffrage. In every village there is a free school, in many towns free colleges, open on equal terms to all, and the system of education is one of the most perfect in Europe. This is what Greece has accomplished since her disenthralment from the Turkish yoke—this is what is sought by the Cretans, now so nobly struggling for the same object.

FINANCES.—The Louisville Democrat, referring to the recent failure of a large establishment, occasioned by the decline in cotton, and commenting upon an apprehended financial crisis, says:

Aside from this decline in cotton, which will, of course, affect more or less injuriously, those immediately concerned, and to some extent others, there is nothing to indicate any general revulsion in business. The currency is not curtailed, nor has it become worthless; prices of staple articles have not suddenly declined, and it is not possible to see that any general failure, such as we have seen, can take place.

There is more panic than real danger, and the panic itself is likely to do more harm than the reality of the danger. It is quite natural that a house trading in cotton so extensively as the New York concern should meet with a check from the fall in cotton; but it is hardly probable that a house of such large means could lose all and leave their creditors entirely minus. But even if it did, what is lost on cotton can hardly lead to a general revulsion and end in disaster. There is nothing in the general trade of the country to indicate it.

Better keep cool, and not be scared before one is hurt.

Death of Hon. Elijah Hise.

We are inexorably pained to have to announce the death of Hon. Elijah Hise, yesterday afternoon, under a protracted and painful illness of four months; leaving a numerous family of brothers and sisters to mourn his loss. He was a bright and beautiful child; but God in his infinite wisdom had seen fit

To smother his way to a world of bliss. The innocent soul too pure for this. Mother! why weepst thou? Thy child has gone to rest; And sleeps in Heavenly rapture now. On her dear Saviour's breast. The wreath thou placed upon his brow: Is changed to jewels bright; A coroner upon his head, Shines with celestial light.

A SINGULAR AUCTION.—A foreign correspondent, writing from a town in Germany, says: "The auction of dancers at a village is a curious affair. The girls are all assembled on an open space, generally in front of the burgomaster's house of business, and an auctioneer, having been chosen among the young men, generally a wag in his way—the name of Roschen, Naruschen, Kirschen, and all the other chens (an endearing diminutive by which the lasses are styled), are called out, and the auctioneers proceeds, which gives the highest bidder the sole right over the hand for the year, at all festive dancing and rejoicings which take place, and these are not few. It is generally an understood thing that it is akin to a declaration; but still it is not in any way binding. Of course there are struggles and competition for the prettiest, but she falls to the richest. The cash goes to pay musicians and a spread or two; and if anything is over it is given to the church."

Ristori. It is said, has made $270,000 clear profit by playing one hundred and sixty-eight nights during her visit to the United States. What other calling in life pays like this? No wonder Ristori has long articles in the magazines and columns in the newspapers wherever she goes.

And it is because she has long articles in the magazines and newspapers, because she is well advertised wherever she goes, that her playing pays as it does. The secret of her success is to be found in her advertisements. Without these she would play to empty benches.—Rochester Union.

There is in the commentary of the Union a very useful hint, which is worthy of thought and reflection by those who are in any way competitors for public favor and distinction. Success in any line where the public are concerned is mainly comprised in two words—judicious advertising.

OXIONS.—"Oxions," says Dr. Hall, "are one of the most nutritious, healthful, and delectable articles of food in our markets. We never eat one to our knowledge, and never expect to; we can smell them a mile off, perhaps. A few grains of coffee eaten immediately afterwards, or a teaspoonful of vinegar swallowed, removes at once the odor of the breath. If oxions are half boiled, and the water thrown away, and then put into soup to be boiled 'done,' the odor will be little noticed."

A boy's idea of having a tooth drawn may be summed up as follows: "The doctor hatched fast on me, pulled his best, and just before it killed me the tooth came out."

TALL MULE.—J. H. Kendrick, of this county, has a mule colt which measured, at birth, three feet nine inches in height. Can this be beat?—Paris Kentuckian.

W. C. Hornsley, of Shelby county, has a mule that measured at birth, four feet. A mule colt of Jacob Hardester's, of Henry county, measured at birth, three feet, nine inches and a quarter.

To All Whom It May Concern: This is to certify that I was taken with the dyspepsia a year ago last March, and for a period of eight months, was one of the most miserable creatures I ever felt, not being able to eat, drink, or sleep, and was compelled to walk the floor incessantly. I was nearly deprived of my reason, and hope had entirely left me, all the efforts made for my recovery having proved fruitless.

By the first of November, 1865, I had become so weak and feeble, that I could scarcely stand alone, and to all appearances, would soon die. At this time (having read your advertisement,) my wife prevailed upon me to try your Bitters. A bottle was procured, and, having taken four bottles, and am enjoying as good health now as could be expected for one of my age (about sixty years). I have no doubt that it was your Bitters alone, under Divine Providence, that effected this wonderful cure.

The Harrodsburg Signal is a new paper that we most heartily welcome to our exchange list.

We are compelled to omit the official returns from this county. Will publish next week, with official vote of the state.

At the close of the speaking last Monday Mr. John Wight, announced himself a candidate for Representative from Shelby county.

We had the pleasure of a visit last week, from our friend, Burke C. Payne, of Louisville. He looks well and is in good spirits.

MUSIC RECEIVED.—From D. P. Faulds, Louisville Ky. "Pet Schottisch," by Graoe E. Murray; and "Eminence Quick Step," by Prof. T. E. Bayley.

LADIES, go to Jones & Smith's, and see some beautiful Parasols and Fans just received, and for sale cheap. Also, a new lot of White Marcellas Spreads, just received. Call and see them.

We have the first number of the Clarion published at Lebanon, Ky. It presents a new appearance, and is in every respect a good paper. We wish it a long and prosperous career.

The Shelby County Agricultural and Mechanical Association held a meeting on May 8, and elected officers for the ensuing year. The next fair will begin August 27, and continue four days.

In this issue we announce as candidates for Representative from this county, Col. Culver Sanders, and W. S. Helm Esq.

We also publish a call upon Jas. S. Morris, Esq., to become a candidate. From such good material Shelby cannot fail to select a good Representative.

HEADACHE.—The brain and stomach are very intimately connected, consequently a disordered stomach produces Headache, Dizziness, Vertigo, &c. Cor's Dr. PERSIA CURE will certainly correct the stomach, and assist digestion, thus removing the cause of these troubles.

We are requested by Dr. G. J. Stivers, to say that he has made ample arrangements for the more prompt prosecution of his extensive practice by securing the services of an able assistant. Persons who have had to wait for an opportunity heretofore, for dental operations, will appreciate this move of Dr. Stivers.

LIBERALITY.—In looking over the list of premiums a few days since, awarded at the fair held by the Shelby county Agricultural and Mechanical Association last August, we noticed two very liberal premiums given by our fellow townsman, Dr. G. J. Stivers. The following are the premiums: Best hand made gingham sun bonnet paste-board splits, made by a lady—$10.

Best male rider married man—Silver cup, $10.

Individuals in our community who witnessed the administration of Nitrous Oxide Gas in New York city, and other principal cities, and who have since taken it at Dr. Stivers' Dental Cabinet, unhesitatingly say that his mode of administering it, is far superior to any they ever saw in the East or elsewhere. He does not use the filthy India rubber bag used by some disreputable persons. But his gas is in a fine zinc reservoir suspended over pure water. Thus keeping a pure and excellent article always on draught.

USEFUL ARTICLE.—We have received from B. B. Ross, an indelible lead pencil for marking linen &c. It is a great improvement on the old method of marking clothing, and can be used with more neatness and despatch as there is no blotting, and no preparation required except the dampening of the fabric to be marked. Indelible ink may as well be used, for this pencil will come into universal use. One pencil will mark 1,500 articles of clothing, consequently it will last an editor a long time. Call at B. B. Ross' Book & Drug Store, and get one.

THOSE OF OUR READERS who lack a growth of hair upon the face, or those whose hair is falling out, or have become bald, would do well to try "Dr. SEVIGNE'S RESTAURATEUR CAPILLAIRE." This preparation has been used by thousands in this country and Europe, with the most gratifying results. Testimonials of the most flattering character have been received from the most wealthy and influential citizens of the country, and will be sent free to any one on application, by Messrs. BERGER, SHUTTS & Co., Chemists, of Troy, N. Y., the only agents in America for the sale of the same. Read their advertisement in this paper.

NEW GOODS.—J. T. THORNTON takes this method of informing all his old customers and as many new ones, that he has just returned from New York with a good stock of beautiful goods for the Spring and Summer trade, consisting in part of Real Point, Point Applique, Valenciennes, Cluny, Guipure, and Blood Lace and Insertings; Embroidered Flouncings, Edgings and Insertings; Kid, Silk, Buck, and Lisle-thread Gloves; Lace Points, Lace Mitts, Cors ts, Parasols, Umbrellas, Showerettes; Irish Linens, Nansooks Swiss Muslins, 8-4 French Organdies, Linen Cambrics, Cotton and Lisle-thread Hosiery, Zephyr Shawls, Hooped Skirts, Fans, Nets, Ribbons, and a great variety of Notions and Fancy Goods, which were carefully selected, and will be sold low. A call is respectfully solicited from every body.

J. T. THORNTON, At the old stand of Thornton & Rogers 120 Fourth st., bet Market and Jefferson.

Correspondence.

Alabama Correspondence MOORESVILLE, ALA., May 1, 1867.

MR. EDITOR: Still in the territories and expecting every morning, when I rise, to hear that I have been confiscated, blown up or ordered to leave the country. Well, should Thad. Stevens and his party conclude to do either you will hear from me immediately, as I will most assuredly fall back on Kentucky, as there is more genuine pluck in that old commonwealth than all the rest of the United States combined.

Spring time, "Gentle Annie," with its smiling face is peeping in upon us, and the gay plumage of the Magnolia expects soon to present itself to us "rebs" for inspection and admiration. It will take something more substantial than the Magnolia to quell the restless appetite of this people, and "old time" had better be putting in his best liks if he expects to accomplish anything.

We are making efforts to get back into the union, if staying at home, talking good, planting corn and cotton will do good. I think enough cotton would do more to get us back to our former position, than the blabbing of every man in this country. What do we care about representation if we can make plenty of cotton, for it is equivalent to representation or anything else, as we can get the "green backs" for it, and, with a plenty of that article we defy the world. If the Congress of the United States could know and see the utter disgust that a true Southern man viewed their proceedings, they would certainly stop their howling and find something more important to occupy their time. I think it would handsomely remunerate such a man as Stephens to visit the territories and see for himself how little the people care for what he says. He is decidedly the "smallest pea in the dish," frightens the people less with what he says in relation to them.

Dan Castello's Circus, Menagerie, and humberg has lately swept through "the land of flowers," and swept off a great many dollars that should have been expended for bread and meat. But who wanted to live any longer than to see one more show, and consequently the money was forthcoming and every "nigger" that could crawl was on hand with their mouths open and their eyes shining. As the establishment passed up the railroad the side of the track was strewn with their black carcasses and grinning faces. The train halted for some purpose at the depot, and during the stoppage, I heard a conversation between one of the employees and a very old negro man. The employee seemed to understand a negro perfectly well and was more after fun than anything else. Pulling out a gorgeously illustrated show bill, he presented it to the old man of color, saying: "Here old man is the great franchise bill that we have heard so much talk about, and entitles the negroes to vote. Stick it up in your house for future reference, point out with your own finger to your own children, the illustrious men that framed this bill to make you free and equal with all men." The old darkey seemed to be considerably effected at the supposed sympathy of the employee, and drew near his side. "This is Thad. Stevens' old man," said the employee, pointing to a baboon on the bill, "he is your father and you should ever love and reverence his name above all men."

Man of color, "no sir, dat ain't my daddy—my daddy was a black man—I know my daddy too well for dat. Dat thing has got a tail and I know it ain't any kin to me." About this time the train started, and the old negro returned to his cabin with his franchise bill.

Should we be successful this year with our crops, this will be a fine market for Kentucky stock traders next year, and I would advise owners of mules to hold to them, and they will certainly never regret it provided there is not another failure.

Yours, &c., NEMO.

A Call upon J. S. Morris Esq. RUSSELL'S

REAPER AND MOWER.

REASON WHY IT IS THE BEST

SA MOWER.

It runs light, is simple and complete, enduring all the flexibility, strength and durability, requisite to a first class Machine.

It has two independent driving wheels, with rollers, sets nearly enclosed in the center, out of the way and free from dirt, by which a steady motion of the knife is secured when cutting close to the right or left, and allow the knife to stand still when the machine is backed.

The finger bar is made of cast steel, and will conform perfectly to the surface of the ground over which it may be drawn, and can be raised to pass over stumps, stones, or grass rooted obstructions, as occasion may require.

The cutting device is of the most approved plan, and is warranted not to clog or choke; the guards can be set to move high or low at pleasure.

The location of the finger bar at the rear of the driving wheels, is the very best position for a mower, and the only position for a good reaper. By this arrangement, the bar can be raised or lowered, and the driving wheels, by which power and motion is communicated to the knife, the driver can avoid obstructions in front, and avoid danger to himself and machine, and with the bar thus situated it is not necessary to raise it, in case and convenience in turning, which is a great saving on both man and team.

The finger bar can be locked up and secured to the Machine, which makes it as convenient for transporting from place to place as a common cart.

AS A REAPER.

It embraces all the flexibility and strength of the Mower, with independent reaping bar and sick, which can be set to cut from one to fifteen inch stubble; the points of the guards or fingers can be raised or lowered so as to take up lodged or fallen grain in the most perfect manner.

The hand rake or platform attachment with easy side delivery is indispensable in harvesting barley, oats and flax, or any kind of grain of short growth, or when lying on the ground.

The dropping attachment or self rake is a very convenient arrangement, by which the driver can drop the grain in front of the reaper, and the finger bar ready for binding.

In this combination of the side delivery hand rake attachment, with the dropping attachment either of which can be attached or detached in a moment's time, is secured the most perfect harvesting machine in existence, for with it all kinds or varieties of grain can be cut and taken up in good order.

By a very simple but complete arrangement the reaping bar, with either platform or dropping attachment, can be folded in the rear of the machine without taking off the reel or any of its parts, for the convenience of passing through and over narrow gates, roads or bridges.

Machines are on exhibition at Schaeffer & Company's, 411 N. 3rd St., St. Louis, Mo.
